

To whom it may concern.

In the past, gauges sold by Tyco Electronics for checking of the associated hand tools have been specified and sourced in various countries. The manufacture of gauges is often controlled by country specific standards and therefore the actual tolerances of the gauges reflects the appropriate standard of the source country. In certain instances, the country specific standard may mean that the actual gauge dimensions vary slightly from those specified in the relevant instruction sheets. In general, such gauges tend to have smaller tolerances than the instruction sheets require.

In order to avoid any possible confusion that may result from this slight variance, Tyco Electronics has now adopted new standardized gauge part numbers. These new part numbers avoid this country specific variability and provide dimensional conformance with the instruction sheets. These new gauge part numbers supersede and replace all previous part numbers.

Tyco Electronics has no reason to believe that use of the existing gauges will cause any lack of functionality or performance of the terminals applied by our tools.

A cross reference list of all new gauges is attached.
